It is doubtful if the Committee appointed by Council Wednesday night to interview the Cincinnati Gas Transportation Company in regard to supplying this city with natural gas will accomplish much. As yet there is not a city or town between the Big Sandy river and Covington that has the assurance of being supplied with natural gas. Even Newport is given the go-by.

HALF CENTURY

In Drug Business at Maysville—Dr.

J. James Wood Rounds Out

Fifty Years

Today, Friday, the 19th of February, marks and rounds out Mr. J. James Wood's 50th year in the drug business in Maysville.

It is of course understood what an advance a half century has made in the sale of pills, paints and patent medicines, and what a difference there is in the ancient "apothecary shop" of old times compared with the modern drug emporium of today.

Dr. Wood, who is still in vigorous mind and health, and who has retired from the arduous drudgery of constant business, is still at the head of the well known firm of J. James Wood & Son, which remains one of the landmarks and leading drug houses of the State. Mr. Wood now occupies his leisure in reading, domestic and Church duties and in the bosom of his devoted family.

His legion of friends wish him continued good health and prosperity and hope to see him round out his 75th, or diamond anniversary, in commercial pursuit.

All of the section men on the Dover section of the C. and O. Railroad, and presumably on other sections, have been laid off, and Foreman McNutt is the whole push. Many night telegraph offices have been closed, says The Dover News.

It coaxes back that well feeling, healthy look, puts the sap of life in your system, protects you from disease. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea has no equal as a spring tonic for the whole family. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Thos. J. Chemoweth.

"America's Winter Playground."

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA., February 15th, 1909.

The weather-man is behaving much better, although we are having occasional "so-sou'westers," veering to "sou'easters." Ain't it wonderful how soon a fellow begins to speak learnedly of the sea after he has sucked in a little salt air—it's so different from the "hot air" one hears occasionally at home. The outlook now is for an out-door climate, and a discard of winter wraps.

Yesterday curiosity more perhaps than religion led me to the Memorial Church, Presbyterian, one of the show-places of this old town. In all the world it has not its counterpart. Built in the shape of a cross, the cruciform likeness is preserved in the auditorium, the organ loft and rostrum forming the apex of the cross, with seats stretching at right angles North, East and South to complete the figure. The heavy railings which hide the choir from view, the pulpit and the pews, beautiful and impressive in their massiveness, are all of solid mahogany. Inlaid into pulpit front is this inscription:

This Church was erected by Henry M. Flagler, in loving remembrance of his daughter, Jennie Louise Benedict, who died March 25th, A. D. 1889.

Throughout the building are memorial windows and inscriptions, testifying a father's love and his faith in the Blessed Redeemer. At the Southwest angle of the Church, and forming part of the building, is the daughter's mausoleum. Aside from interest in the unique memorial, I heard a most able sermon on Abraham's Faith—an old, old story, but which was dressed in a new spring suit by the eloquent young Pastor—James Coffin Stout.

Having been good in the morning, thought I'd "do" the Ponce concert in the evening; so I wound my way through the palm gardens, past flowing fountains and liveried lackeys, and finally reached the rotunda in safety. Here, within a limited space, the goats are permitted to gaze upon the sheep, but not to rub up against them—for all of which the goats ought to be grateful.

I told you in former letter that the rates at the Ponce—it's Ponce de Leon, but ink is scarce and I'll call it Ponce for short—were $5 per day up—mostly up. Since then I've been told that one can count on the fingers of one hand all the "$5 per" rooms in the house. These are probably reserved for the snobs who come down here to get their names in the list of arrivals at the Ponce, stay a few days, write letters to their best silly girls on Ponce stationery—and then go back home and chaw liver for six months to come. Leaving the $5 per day rooms, the scale ascends quite rapidly, reaching by quick jumps from $25 to $100 per day, the latter recently charged to a Preacher for himself, wife and daughter, occupying two rooms! A Preacher! Just think of that! Tell Bro. Harrop to come down, bring his family and enjoy a few days at $100 per!

If I knew that Parson, I'd feel very much like telling him what Fighting Bob Evans told the New York "nob."

Bob entered an ultra fashionable Church in Getham and was shown by the usher to a desirable pew. Later the owner appeared, and finding some one ahead of him, sent a note to the intruder—

"Sir: I pay $1,000 a year for the privilege of occupying this pew."

Evans read the note, pulled his pencil and wrote beneath it—

"Sir: You pay too damned much."

And Fighting Bob was permitted to enjoy the pew alone.

Yes; these Ponce people pay too damned much, especially when they split hairs with the toilers who produce the wealth they are squandering. Little wonder that Anarchists are growing up around us.

If I'm able to judge, the majority of the people I saw there belong to the suddenly "new rich," and one old dame who seemed to have been struck with a regular diarrhea of diamonds—she had one that would have made a headlight for the "F. F. V."—looked as though she might have been the inheritor of a fortune made by selling shoddy for Uncle Sam's soldiers during the Civil War.

Lincoln was philosophic when he said "the Lord must love the common people—he made so many of them."

Thank the Lord, I am one of the common people.

PECOR

Her Figure is Trim, Her Form Sublime

The actress looked debonair, though the play had been pronounced a frost by the critics. "It's got to succeed," she explained, "and for that reason I'm not nervous. Last season I played seven new parts and I burned a lot of good coin for costumes. This season I am radiating with health. My form is ideally proportioned. I took the Marmola Prescription to get this sublime figure, and a woman's figure cannot be nearer perfection than what Marmola has made of me. A doctor friend of mine gave me the prescription. He's a brick. It's so simple: Just get at any druggist ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Castara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed time. Now I have the strength, enthusiasm and power of a dozen stars. I tell you I am going to be 17." With this the leading lady bowed the reporter out, calling after him, "If you have any lady friends tell them about Marmola, but impress upon them that there are cheap substitutes on the market that do not do the work." Cabin of Little Abe Becomes Nation's Shrine

Being a Belated Story of the Editor's Trip to Lincoln's Centenary

trackless forest, dwelt the parent-pioneers who gave a real hero to the world.

Although the Lincoln Farm is poor, it is justly and famously designated as

"The Farm That Raised a Man."

While the Lincoln birthplace is in the very poorest yellow soil section of Larue county, yet the Farm is prettily situated. The land is rolling and has a rustic picturesqueness and a poverty of undornament, except a lone-some garniture of scrubby evergreen cedars here and there peculiar to the poorest sections of Kentucky.

Here in the very arms of nature Lincoln was born and lived for nearly seven years. That locality is ripe and ripe with "Lincoln stories," and one could write a volume of the folklore dealt out to him by many of the natives assembled around the cabin last Friday. The occasion was one long to be remembered and to our mind was without a parallel in this country.

Hodgenville, the county seat of Larue county, is three miles from the Lincoln Farm, and is a modest little city of a thousand people. Its public square encloses a County Courthouse of no pretensions to architectural beauty; the streets are muddy thoroughfares, but there are some nice homes and some new concrete pavements. It has a "County Fair," and, with the Lincoln Farm to make it famous, henceforth Hodgenville (which should be called "Lincoln") is to dominate the entire map of that remote section.

The land around Hodgenville is rolling and lays the land and the country seems prosperous. They raise stock and grain, but grow very little tobacco.

The "Lincoln Farm," in its present state of cultivation, grows corn and squashes, but as it produced "A Man"—that is enough. Outside of its sentimental value, the farm is worth about $15 per acre, although the land adjacent is worth from $25 to $50 per acre.

Hodgenville is 42 miles from Louisville by the L. and N. and is 11 miles from Elizabethtown by the branch line railroad that gives it steam connection with the world. The little railroad last Friday was given its maximum test and handled about 4,000 people without incident or accident, except the slow motion of pulling up grade and a broken rail, which delayed the train's returning for over an hour at Toneyville, half way between E-town and Hodgenville. The train of President Roosevelt and the Collier-Mackay special were both on the sidetrack at Hodgenville. The big crowd and the celebrities were conveyed over the muddy highway in vehicles to the Farm, three miles. There was not a single automobile at the doin's. The ceremonies began at 1 o'clock under the canvas tent add the temporary wooden structure built especially for the occasion, right by the side of the Lincoln cabin, which is to be housed and sheltered in a magnificent pink granite, lofty and fireproof building which is to form the Lincoln Shrine and Temple of Liberty for years to come.

The log cabin, which had been removed years ago from its original site and conveyed about the country, was taken back and rebuilt on the exact spot it formerly occupied. Through the patriotic munificence of Mr. Robert J. Collier, publisher of Collier's Weekly, the Lincoln Farm of 110 acres, together with the cabin and the $150,000 Memorial Temple is to be the perpetual property of the Lincoln Farm Association, a public gift to the American people. Mr. Collier was there in person last Friday directing the simple, but inspiring ceremonies, and it is but just to remark that to Mr. Collier belongs the credit of having this enduring National Monument and shrine erected in Kentucky. The memorial is to be completed within a year and is to be fittingly dedicated by President Taft.

There is no inspiring lake, river or stream of water near the Lincoln Farm, but there is a fine and wonderful spring only sixty yards below the cabin that affords a continuous stream of pure water. This "rock spring" was the Mecca of all visitors, and down under a natural shelf of rock the people drank at the stream that at one time quenched the thirst of the little boy whose fame today rings throughout the world. It is said that a distillery would have been erected near this spring if Mr. Collier had not "seen it first," purchased it and given it to Kentucky.

With President Roosevelt as the honor guest and the principal speaker, the ceremonies began about 1 p.m. Seated on the platform around the President were the many celebrities. Mrs. Roosevelt and daughter, Miss Ethel, were seated by the President's side, and Mrs. Wilson, wife of the Governor, was also present.

"The Man from Maysville" was very much in evidence in the persons of Governor A. E. Willson, Lieutenant-Governor W. H. Cox, Mr. Hamlet C. Sharp, while on the honor platform were Dr. William Bowman and Captain Charles C. Degman of our neighborhood, who were two of the twelve special G. A. R. guards and twelve Confederates who formed the Presidential escort. In the crowd also were Mr. and Mrs. P. H. King, Charles E. Curran and the Editor of THE PUBLIC LEDGER, all of Maysville, and Judge George W. Dye of the county. Besides, the ceremonies were opened with an eloquent prayer by that distinguished divine, the Rev. E. L. Powell, formerly of Maysville, and now the popular Pastor of the First Christian Church, Louisville.

The speeches of Governor Willson of Kentucky, Governor Folk of Missouri, President of the Lincoln Farm Association, President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Wright and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson were words of timely import and eloquence.

The address of President Roosevelt was one of the most earnest and eloquent tributes ever paid to the memory of the great President. Of all men Theodore Roosevelt was the proper person to dedicate the noble shrine to be erected to Abraham Lincoln. It was expected that Mr. Roosevelt's Lincoln day speech would be principally devoted to a scathing denunciation of his enemies, but the President devoted his remarks to the great subject matter of the day and was in his most radiant and beaming mood.

It was a treat to listen to the heartfelt words of Theodore Roosevelt. It was the voice of the greatest living American patriot uttering a burning and truthful eulogy of Lincoln, the greatest of all Americans save George Washington.

Thus closes the life of the "rail-splitter," whose self-trained knowledge grew to be inspired and almost supernatural. His knowledge of men and statescraft were intuitive, and his vision that of a political seer.

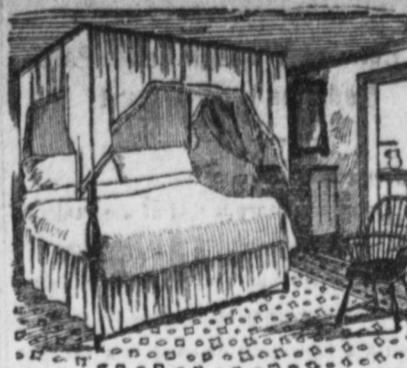

What a lesson and moral can be drawn from the man whose origin and parentage were as humble as that of Jesus. Both the son of a carpenter, one born in a manger, the other in a cabin, as poor and humble as the manger. Lincoln's prophetic vision.

Lincoln's ability to foreseen events far in the future and to keep the balance between the extremes of крайней reaction brighten the President's highest life toward the future of the nation. Likewise he carried on his work with the soundest common sense. Comparing Wash-

“FRAUDS UPON THE PUBLIC”

Is what some physicians have called patent medicines, and it is undeniably true that some are frauds and some are even worse, because they are injurious. On the other hand, there are many patent medicines, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and others, which are of real worth and are recommended by physicians of recognized standing.

SURE CURE

For Hog Cholera is Claim Made for New Serum

Commissioner of Agriculture Rankin announces that a serum has been discovered at the Experiment Station at Lexington that will be a preventative and positive cure for hog cholera.

A conference between Mr. Rankin and Prof. M. A. Scoville of the Experiment Station was held Tuesday for the purpose of providing the serum to the hog raisers of this State free of cost, and while falling in this purpose it was arranged to supply it at a cost of 30 cents a quart.

The medicine has been given a complete test, and it has not failed in all

A homely hero born of star and sod; A peasant Prince; a masterpiece of God.

While other places throughout the world were holding Lincoln celebrations last Friday, February 12th, yet the only real, genuine centenary exercises took place at the birthplace of the great patriot at the "Lincoln Farm" in Larue county at that memorable day. The scene was one of the most impressive and appropriate ever witnessed in any country, and marked a new era in the annals of this State which gave Abraham Lincoln to the world.

In thousands of cities and places in the United States the Lincoln centenary ceremonies permitted thousands of persons the opportunity to pose and orate and to theatrically glorify in exploiting the history and the virtues of one of the purest and most eminent of all Americans. But at the humble log cabin where little Abe Lincoln first saw the light of day there were gathered together six thousand people from every sphere of citizenship to do honor to the only American who, by destiny and noble achievements, is entitled to rank with George Washington in the galaxy of exalted American patriotism, wisdom and human endeavor.

George Washington was the father and founder of his country.

Abraham Lincoln was the architect of the indissoluble Union of the United States, and his martyr-blood will forever hallow the sacred altars of American Liberty.

Thus the humble log cabin in which Lincoln was born became the second National shrine of American patriotism, dividing honors with Mt. Vernon, the stately home of Washington.

The place of Lincoln's nativity is swathed about in all the rustic poverty of the humblest of nature's settings. One cannot picture a more humble spot than that occupied by the lonely cabin home of Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln, near Hodgenville. It is lonely now. What must it have been a hundred years ago when little Abe was born? In the center of Kentucky, on a small eminence, in the then

OLD VET'S MISTAKE

Lost Pension Through Fake Patent Medicine Indorsement

Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

A very amusing story is told of a certain U. S. pensioner of this county whose name we will not give. He had secured a liberal pension from the Government because he was afflicted with a disease he claimed was brought on by service in the Army. Some time after securing his pension he gave a testimonial to a patent medicine fakir, stating that he had been entirely cured of this disease by the nostrum prepared by the aforesaid fakir.

Mr. Patent Medicine Man printed this testimonial, together with a picture of the pensioner, in an alleged almanac. The attention of the Pension Bureau was called to the case, and as he no longer suffered from the ailment for which the pension was granted they discontinued it.

At once a relapse set up and the veteran suffered terribly from the old malady. But it was about a year before he could get back on Uncle Sam's list.

Now if a patent medicine fakir comes to see this veteran he will hear some things not pleasant to the polite ear.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Maysville People Are Requested to Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Maysville more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere in the Union? Read this:

Mrs. Della Means, 328 East Front street, Maysville, Ky., says:

"About seven years ago kidney trouble made its appearance in my case, the first symptom being a sharp pain through my kidneys, accompanied by a bearing-down feeling across my hips and loins. Dull, miserable headaches soon began to bother me, and I often became so dizzy that if I did not catch hold of something I would have fallen. I continued to grow worse, until I was often confined to my bed for a week at a time. No remedy I used helped me, and I was in a bad way. Drosical swellings appeared, and there was an almost complete retention of the kidney secretions. My body also bloated, and it would be impossible to describe the misery I endured. I had about despaired of ever being cured, when I read of a person who had been freed of a similar trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills. Deciding to try them, I procured a supply at J. J. Wood & Son's Drugstore, and I obtained so much relief from the first box that I continued taking the remedy until entirely cured. I have no hesitation in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."
